“The new EPRA BPR guidelines became applicable together with the new scoring methodology in 2021. With the introduction of the new NAVs, the enhanced CapEx disclosure and the implementation of a strengthened scoring methodology, there was expectation of significant impact on the survey results. However as is evident with this year’s results, the impact has been limited, demonstrating that a large number of the 181 companies surveyed have made great stride in adopting the new NAVs and enhanced their reporting, notably by disclosing the required calculations of the EPRA performance measures. The real estate industry has reached a new milestone in terms of disclosure and I congratulate the sector on the same.”

Olivier Elamine,
Chairman of the EPRA Reporting & Accounting Committee and CEO of alstria office REIT

Foreword

Over the years, the EPRA Best Practices Recommendations (BPR) have become a cornerstone of any property company's financial disclosures and have been the main driving force behind the massive increase in the transparency of the European listed sector.

Despite the undoubted wide adoption of the BPR by the industry over the past decade, areas of improvement have always remained foremost in our approach. As such, at the end of 2019, and following extensive consultations with property companies and investors, the methodology of the BPR Awards has been modified, to further recognise and promote consistency, transparency and accountability in financial reporting. New disclosure requirements have been introduced, including three updated EPRA Net Asset Value metrics (NRV, NTA, NDV), as well as an enhanced CapEx disclosure.

2021 marks the first year when the methodology has been applied to the BPR Awards and the results are encouraging. 141 companies out of 181 surveyed have adopted the new NAVs and improved their disclosures against last year's. I believe that EPRA's educational plan rolled out over the last year is at the core of this positive uptake. Ten workshops and webinars have been conducted by the EPRA Finance team in partnership with the Big Four and national associations in various locations to help stakeholders familiarise themselves with the changes.

The results show that there is still some additional work to do on the CapEx disclosures, as these have been adopted by only 51 companies. We will continue to engage and provide our members with the most appropriate guidance in order to achieve the next milestones together.

Finally, and as always, I would like to thank the Deloitte team for conducting the review and for helping EPRA promote transparency in the European listed real estate sector.

A new milestone

I am delighted to announce the results of our EPRA Annual Report Survey 2020 - 2021. This survey comprised a review of 181 Annual Reports from the entire EPRA membership, including several non-European entities. The aim is to measure how the industry has complied with the disclosures requirements of the October 2019 EPRA Best Practices Recommendations (BPR) Guidelines. These updated guidelines introduced three new EPRA Net Asset Value metrics (NRV, NTA and NDV), in replacement of EPRA NAV and NNNNAV, as well as an enhanced CapEx disclosure.

For the first time this year, the new scoring methodology, as approved by EPRA's Board of Directors, was applied. It emphasises on greater transparency and stricter compliance, with the primary goal being to further increase confidence on the reported figures. The main change is the introduction of a zero-scoring concept, applicable to all seven EPRA Performance Measures (KPIs). Under this revised approach, not disclosing a KPI's underlying calculation or all variables of a given KPI results in a zero score for that KPI.

The impact of these changes on the results of the survey is limited, which demonstrates that a large number of the 181 companies surveyed have consciously adopted the new NAVs and enhanced their disclosures compared to last year. This is a remarkable accomplishment for all those companies and their financial teams, and I congratulate them.

The real estate industry reached a new milestone in terms of disclosure with 89 Gold Awards granted this year. 14 new companies achieved the Gold Award. Out of the 181 companies reviewed, 125 were granted an Award, representing 76% by market capitalisation of the companies surveyed against 86% last year. 16 companies included in the survey last year managed a higher Award this year. 62% of EPRA members (by market capitalisation) received a Gold Award, compared to 70% last year.

On a like-for-like basis, the percentage of awarded companies slightly decreased to 75% this year compared with 78% last year.

We noted, however, that the enhancement brought to the CapEx disclosures was adopted by only 51 companies. Only 44 companies disclosed like-for-like rental growth as recommended at $4.5 of the EPRA BPR Guidelines. Ten companies lost their Gold Awards, mainly because they did not provide the calculation of their EPRA vacancy rates. These matters are amongst the few areas of improvement that need to be addressed in order to further increase comparability and transparency across the European real estate industry.

Finally, I would like to thank the teams of reviewers at Deloitte from across our European real estate practices in Amsterdam, Brussels, Dusseldorf, London, Madrid, Munich, Paris and Stockholm. A special thanks to Alina Canedo Martins for her involvement in putting together this report and to EPRA's Hassan Sabir and Baris Sari for their detailed review.

If you would like any further information about the survey, please contact me, or alternatively EPRA's Finance Team at randa@epra.com. Deloitte real estate teams from across Europe would be pleased to welcome the opportunity to meet locally with companies to discuss the survey and individual company results.

2. BPR Awards methodology

Despite the undoubted wide adoption of the BPR by the industry over the past decade, areas of improvement have always remained at the core of attention. As such, in November 2019, EPRA's Board of Directors decided to modify the methodology of the EPRA BPR Awards survey, emphasising on greater transparency and stricter compliance, with the primary goal being to further increase confidence on the reported figures. The purpose of this revised methodology is not only to further increase awareness of EPRA's BPR, but also to encourage companies to recognise and promote consistency as well as transparency in financial reporting.

In accordance with the transitional provision of the EPRA BPR Guidelines, companies with a fiscal year-end between April 2020 and September 2020 that would have been negatively impacted by the new scoring methodology, have been assessed under the old methodology as a one-time exception.

A detailed primary review of annual reports was conducted by Deloitte real estate audit teams from seven countries: Belgium, France, Germany, the Netherlands, Spain, Sweden and the UK.

They performed their evaluation based on a comprehensive questionnaire organised in conjunction with the EPRA Best Practices Recommendations as released in October 2019, applicable for the first time this year.

The allocation of points emphasises on the seven performance measures: EPRA Earnings, NRV, NTA, NDV, Net Initial Yields, Vacancy Rate and Cost Ratios. Information on like-for-like rental growth as required by section 4.5 of the BPR and the enhanced capital expenditure reporting (section 4.7) were also considered when calculating the score.

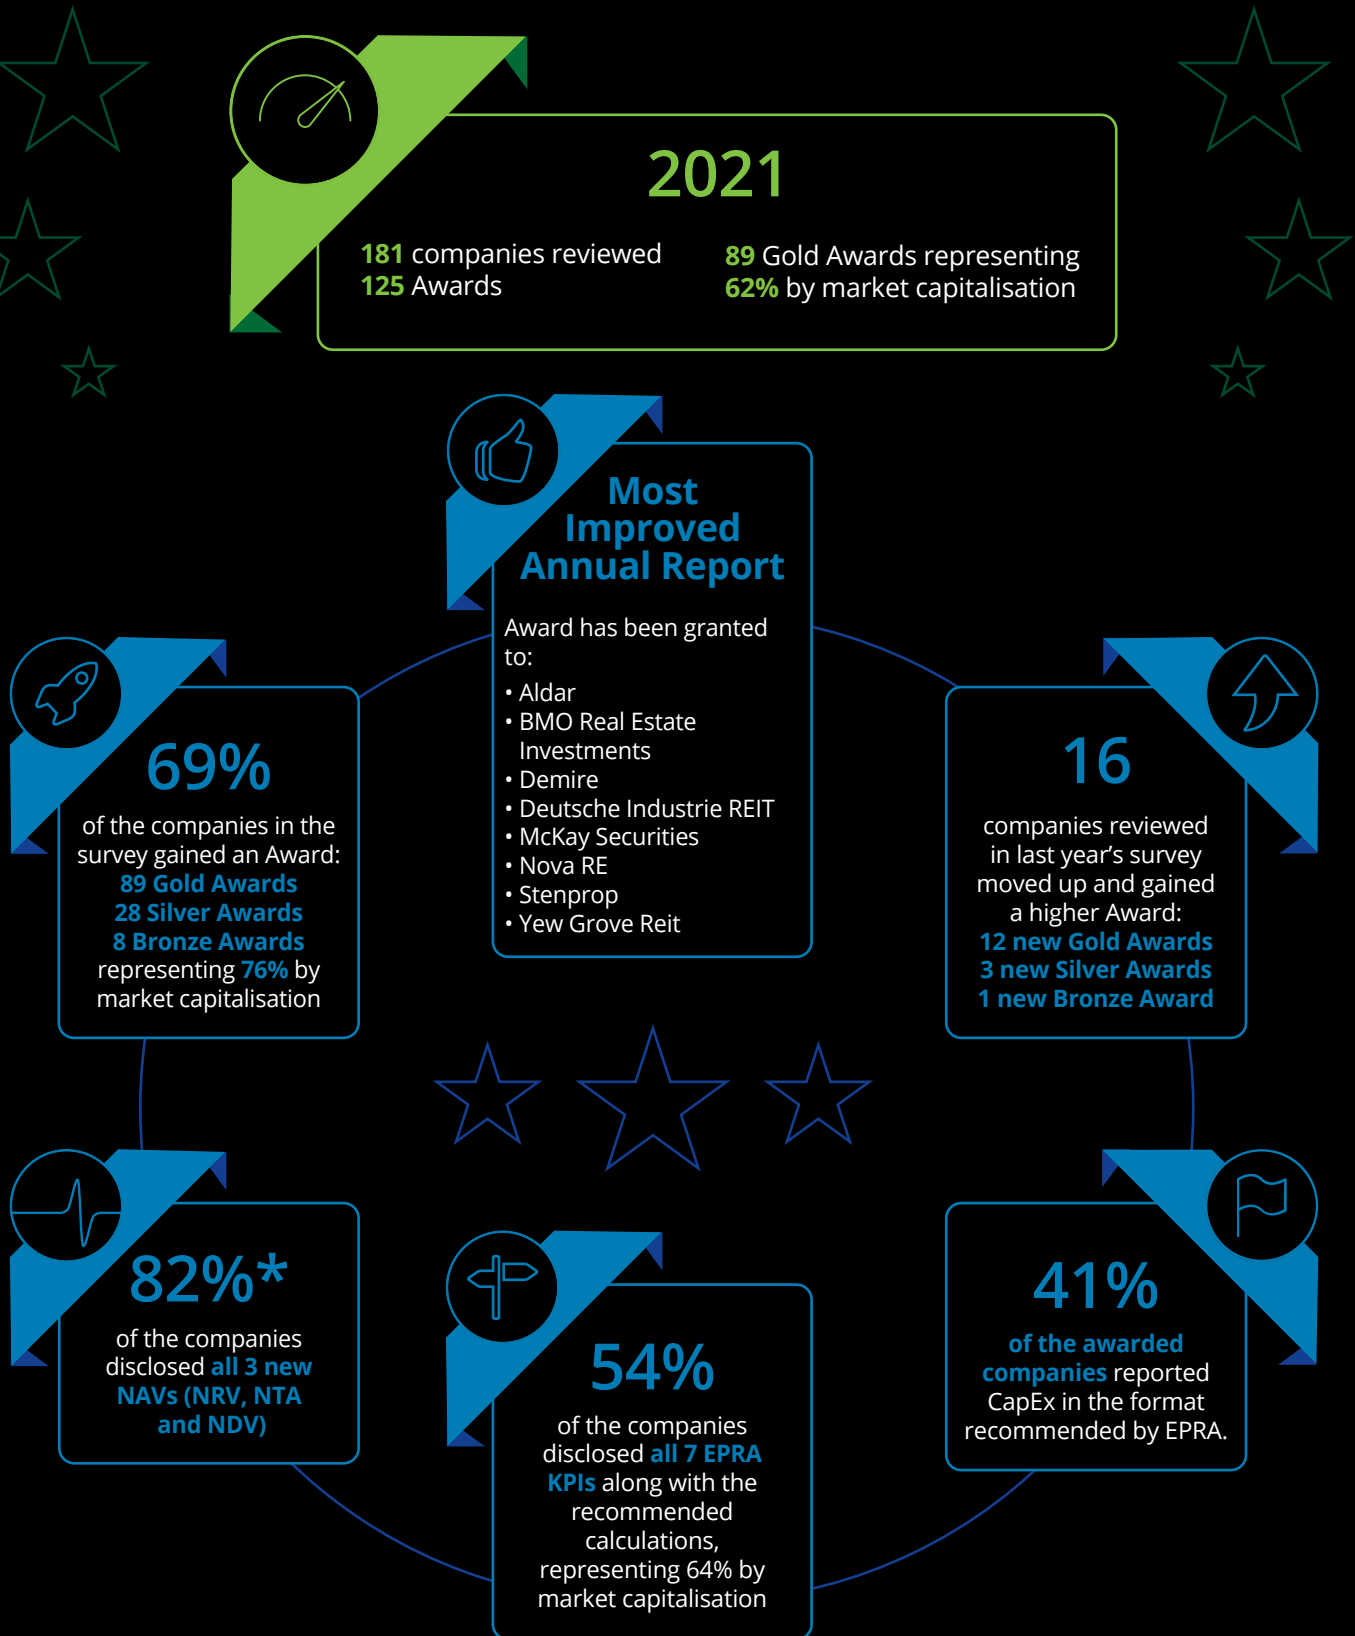

Consistency across each of the companies surveyed was ensured through kick-off calls and regular Q&A sessions. A secondary review was performed by Deloitte real estate specialists, focusing on key measures and areas of contention. Based on the results and after thorough analysis, companies were identified for Gold, Silver or Bronze Awards and for the Most Improved Annual Report Awards.

A final review of the results was then performed in collaboration with EPRA to determine the final allocation of the Awards.

The reader should bear in mind that this survey aims to assess whether the information required by the EPRA BPR has been disclosed and not whether the performance measures included in the annual reports have been appropriately determined according to the EPRA BPR.

A detailed presentation of the methodology for the EPRA BPR Awards is available on the EPRA website.

5. Survey results

For the first time this year, the new EPRA BPR Guidelines became applicable together with the new scoring methodology. With the introduction of the new NAVs, the enhanced CapEx disclosure and the implementation of a strengthened scoring methodology, one could have expected a significant impact on the overall results.

As shown in Figure 1, out of the 181 annual reports reviewed this year, 125 companies earned an award, comprising:

- 89 Gold Awards, representing 62% by market capitalisation, including 14 new Gold Awards winners this year;
- 28 Silver Awards and
- 8 Bronze Awards.

Altogether, these 125 companies represent 76% of the scope of the review by market capitalisation.

The impact of these changes on the results of the survey are limited, which demonstrates that a large number of the 181 companies surveyed have consciously adopted the new NAVs and enhanced their reporting, notably by disclosing the required calculations of the EPRA performance measures. The real estate industry has reached a new milestone in terms of disclosure.

Figure 2 shows the overall evolution year on year on a like-for-like basis. This demonstrates that a very large number of companies have taken steps to adopt the updated BPR in the current year. Among the awarded companies last year, 75% kept their awards and 8% reached a higher award. Only 17% of these companies have been awarded a lower award or have not been awarded this year.

Of the companies surveyed last year (159), 16 have improved their disclosures and gained a higher award this year. Among these:

- 5 companies with a Silver Award last year won a Gold Award this year
- 4 companies with a Bronze Award last year won a Gold Award this year
- 3 companies have been granted a Gold Award this year having received no award last year
- 1 company has been granted a Silver Award this year having received a Bronze Award last year
- 2 companies have been granted a Silver Award this year having received no award last year
- 1 company has been granted a Bronze Award this year having received no award last year

Figure 2. What is the impact of the updated EPRA BPR Guidelines and of the new scoring methodology on a like-for-like basis?

		Number of awards last year				Total
		Gold	Silver	Bronze	No award
Number of awards this year	Gold	75	↑ 5	↑ 4	↑ 3	87
	Silver	↓ 8	14	↑ 1	↑ 2	25
	Bronze	↓ 0	↓ 3	4	↑ 1	8
	No award	↓ 2	↓ 3	↓ 5	29	39
	Total*	85	25	14	35	159

As an example: among the 85 Gold Awards granted last year, 75 kept their Awards this year, 8 were downgraded to Silver and 2 deserved no award.

These solid results demonstrate that thanks to the numerous workshops in key European markets conducted by EPRA in collaboration with the Big 4 as well as local Real Estate Associations, these new KPIs have quickly gained traction.

Amongst the 56 non awarded entities, several lay at the edge of the Bronze Awards. However, more than half of them have disclosed less than 3 EPRA KPIs and not always with the required calculations. Some of them have a business model (for instance real estate developer) that could explain their low level of compliance. We strongly encourage the others to join the large field of companies that have thoroughly adopted the EPRA BPR guidelines. Their involvement shall contribute to further increase transparency and comparability among the European listed real estate sector.

* Total does not match with last year's figures, as some companies awarded last year are no longer in the scope of the survey (cf. chapter 1 Scope of the survey).

6. Areas of improvement

A more detailed analysis of the results shows that there are still some areas of improvement. Although the level of adoption of the revised BPR is more than encouraging, several companies could easily improve their scoring by making sure that they disclosed all KPI's variations and by providing to investors the underlying calculation of each EPRA KPI, as recommended by the EPRA BPR Guidelines. Otherwise, those KPIs will be considered as not disclosed and, hence, no points will be granted.

Even among the top tier companies, disclosures related to like-for-like rental growth or to CapEx need to be improved.

Like-for-like rental growth reporting is key to allow stakeholders to arrive at an estimate of organic growth. This can be used to measure whether the reversions feed through as anticipated, and whether the vacancy rates are changing. The EPRA BPR Guidelines recommend that real estate companies should disclose the like-for-like rental growth in absolute amounts and on a percentage basis, for each significant sector of the portfolio and each geographical business segment. Figure 3 shows an example of best practice.

More details on like-for-like rental growth reporting is to be found on chapter 4.5 of the EPRA BPR Guidelines.

The EPRA BPR Guidelines released in October 2019 provides an enhanced CapEx disclosure. The proposed table was applied by a limited number of companies (51 out of the 125 awarded companies). To meet the requirement of the EPRA guidance, companies should split CapEx into the following components:

- (i) Acquisitions;
- (ii) Development;
- (iii) Investment Properties (standing) with a split notably between the following items:
 - expenditure used for creation of additional lettable area ("Incremental lettable space"),
 - expenditure enhancing existing space ("No incremental lettable space"),
 - CapEx-related incentives;
- (iv) Capitalised interest.

More details on CapEx disclosure is to be found on chapter 4.7 of the EPRA BPR Guidelines.

7. Performance measures

The scoring used in the survey reflects the emphasis that the BPR place on the seven key performance measures: EPRA Earnings, Net Reinstatement Value (NRV), Net Tangible Assets (NTA), Net Disposal Value (NDV), Net Initial Yields, Vacancy Rate and Cost Ratios. As per last years, the most popular metrics in company reporting are the EPRA NAVs. 139 companies have adopted all three new NAVs, which represents 82% of the surveyed companies for which the updated EPRA BPR Guidelines were applicable. A couple of companies have only reported one or two new NAVs, although the EPRA BPR Guidelines recommend that all three NAVs to be published.

54% of the companies disclosed all 7 EPRA KPIs along with the recommended calculations.

The percentage shown in Figure 6 have been determined as follows:

- 2019/ 20 LxL: by applying the former scoring methodology;
- 2020/ 21 LxL and 2020/ 21: by applying the new scoring methodology.

Performance measure	Rationale of the KPI	2019/20 - LxL*	2020/21 - LxL*	2020/21	Comments
EPRA Earnings	Measure of a company's underlying operating results and an indication of the extent to which current dividend payments are supported by earnings.	84%	86%	78%	In 2020/21, 78% of the participants disclosed EPRA Earnings along with a full reconciliation to IFRS figures. On a like-for-like basis, the proportion of companies disclosing the EPRA Earnings metric has slightly increased.
EPRA NIY	A comparable measure for portfolio valuations, which should make it easier for investors to judge themselves how the valuation of portfolio X compares with portfolio Y.	70%	71%	65%	65% of the participants disclosed EPRA Net Initial Yield (NIY) and EPRA "topped-up" NIY together with the required calculation.
EPRA Vacancy Rate	A "pure" (%) measure of investment property space that is vacant, based on estimated rental value.	74%	68%	62%	The level of disclosure of EPRA Vacancy Rate at 62% shows a 10% decrease compared to last year, mainly explained by the fact that some companies did not provide the recommended calculation.
EPRA Cost Ratios	A key measure to enable meaningful measurement of the changes in a company's operating costs. Companies are encouraged to use the EPRA Cost Ratios as a baseline to provide additional disclosures, where appropriate, on costs in the context of their own business model.	64%	66%	60%	The level of adoption of the EPRA Cost Ratios still lags behind the other metrics, but we notice a slight improvement on a like-for-like basis.

8. Award categories

Gold Award

A company's BPR compliance is recognised through the following Award categories:

Exceptional compliance with the BPR. Scoring above 80%. All seven Performance Measures disclosed, along with their underlying calculations and including all variations of each Performance Measure.

Silver Award

High compliance with the BPR. Scoring between 80% and 60%. May have disclosed all seven Performance Measures, along with their underlying calculations and including all variations of each Performance Measure.

Bronze Award

Scoring above 50%. At least three Performance Measures, disclosed, along with their underlying calculations and including all variations of each Performance Measure.

Most Improved Award

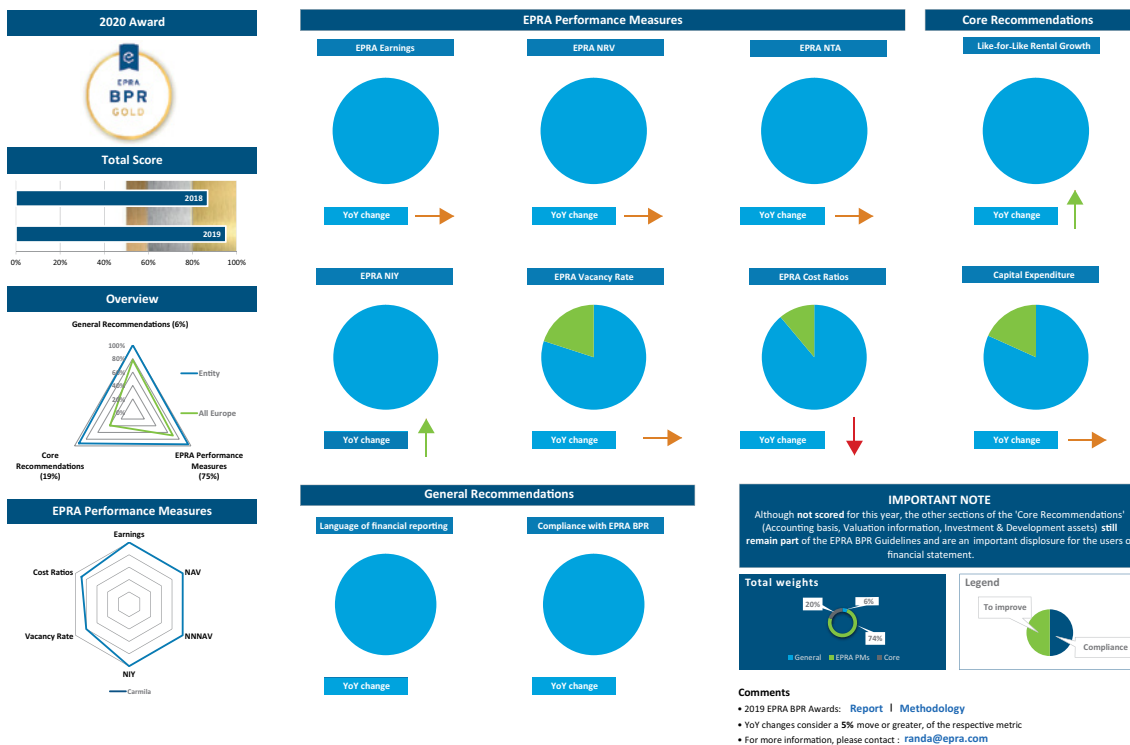

Granted to companies that have outstandingly improved the compliance of their reporting with the BPR, demonstrated by a 30-percentage points YoY increase in their score in comparison to the previous year, reaching the Silver or Gold Award.

BPR feedback report

2020 EPRA BPR Award - Feedback Report

Strictly private and confidential

As in previous years, companies will receive an individual BPR feedback report prepared by EPRA and Deloitte to help them identify the main focus areas where disclosures need to be improved. This feedback report is part of the engagement program developed by the EPRA Reporting & Accounting Committee to enhance the financial reporting of listed property companies and to strengthen the adoption of the EPRA BPR.

This individual report aims to provide a tangible roadmap for companies to meet the minimum threshold and to improve BPR Award from a lower category to a higher one.

This will provide clarity and opportunity for companies to better understand how the change in methodology has affected their assessment.

Working with and for our members

Real estate plays a critical role in all aspects of our everyday lives. Property companies serve businesses and the society by actively developing, managing, maintaining and improving the built environment; where we all live, work, shop and relax. They also play a crucial part in providing retirement security to millions of people, by offering pension funds stable and highly competitive assets to invest in.

EPRA, the European Public Real Estate Association, is the voice of the publicly traded European real estate sector. With more than 280 members, covering the whole spectrum of the listed real estate industry (companies, investors and their suppliers), EPRA represents over EUR 670 billion of real estate assets and 94% of the market capitalisation of the FTSE EPRA Nareit Europe Index.

EPRA's mission is to promote, develop and represent the European public real estate sector. We achieve this through the provision of better information to investors and stakeholders, active involvement in the public and political debate, promotion of best practices and the cohesion and strengthening of the industry.
